MPD officers rescue family from house fire

Officers catch four from second story window

BY BOB DEMAREE AND MARK CAMPBELL

Madison Police rescued at least four members of a family involved in an overnight house fire in the 600 block of Walnut Street — catching a baby thrown from a second story window and two children and a grandmother who all jumped to the officers to get out of the burning structure. “I’m extremely proud of my officers and the work they did to save lives,” Madison Police Chief John Wallace said. “Their actions saved several of the occupants of the home.” Wallace said Officers Josh Nolan, Kyle Potter, Nichole Midgett, Phillip Wimpee, Jordan Perry, Cody Lewis, Jared Sweet, Curtis Shelpman and Kayla Taylor-Moore, and Detectives Ricky Harris, Kyle Cutshaw and Shawn Scudder, and Sheriff’s Deputy Travis Conover.

The fire was one of three that local firefighters battled during a busy holiday weekend that included an influx of people and Madison fire-fighters responded to an early morning fire Sunday in the 600 block of Walnut Street on Sunday. By the time fire-fighters arrived all occupants were out of the home. There were no injuries, and the blaze is still under investigation.

Documentation before demolition

Vetthus asks HDBR to intervene in possible underground railroad home

BY BOB DEMAREE

In her efforts to better tell the story of Madison’s black community, Jan Vetthus stumbled upon some information that a structure scheduled for demolition may hold historical significance and came before Madison’s Historic District Board of Review last week to voice her concerns.

The city’s PACE board in December approved its first grant for demolishing an unsafe building — a home at 707 Walnut Street owned by Scott and Maria Axline — under terms that the owner would rebuild on the lot.

Vetthus, president of the board of directors of the Eleutherian College and a Cornerstone board member, said she was aware that the structure was scheduled for demolition but not aware of the possible historical significance of the residence until a couple of traffic in Madison and Milton for the Madison Regatta & Roostertail Music Festival — crowds, traffic and congestion that made responding to the emergencies even more hectic.

At the same time, the extra officers assigned to the weekend by Madison Police may have played a role in the fast and strong response police made when the fire was reported at 12:57 a.m. Sunday. Wallace already had numerous officers on patrol in the downtown area and they were able to quickly rush to the scene — normally to provide traffic and crowd control — but on Sunday morning to provide life-saving intervention.

“The Regatta gave us a chance to have that many officers on duty downtown so they could get to the scene more quickly,” Wallace said, noting officers in patrol cars and even golf carts and ATVs rushed to the scene.

What they found was a houseful of family members with no good way out of the two story structure other than a window 20 or so feet above ground. The officers worked together to first catch a baby and then two young children and finally the grandmother with all avoiding injury. Two other family members allegedly jumped from a rear window on their own.

“Our people did a heck of the job. There is video of it that we will be posting and it’s heart wrenching. It chokes you up,” Wallace said. “I’m just really proud of our officers.”

Local firefighters quickly arrived to the home as well but by the time they got there everyone was safely out of the burning structure. The firefighters reported heavy fire on the north side of the structure expanding into the attic.

Madison Fire Chief Kenny Washer said “an aggressive attack by crews on scene held the majority of the fire to the involved structure” with only minor damage to a house adjoining on the south side. Crews were on scene until approximately 7 a.m. Sunday.

Washer said the Indiana Fire Marshal and Madison Fire Department are continuing to investigate the cause of the blaze. He said the structure was heavily damaged, but not beyond repair. According to Jefferson County GIS data, the property is owned by Thevenow Properties LLC. All six city fire companies were on scene.

Madison firefighters washed down and cooled off while responding to a fire alarm at one half of a duplex the 300 block of Cragmont Street Sunday afternoon. The blaze was reported at about 4:45 p.m. just as crowds were leaving town after the final race in the 2022 Madison Regatta.

Handout

Fire destroyed a home in the 4000 block of Coopers Bottom Road in Milton, Kentucky, on Saturday night. Firefighters were delayed in their response due to traffic and crowds attending the Madison, Indiana, fireworks along the Ohio River. The occupants were not home at the time of the fire.

and Bedford in Trimble County — along with Madison Township Fire Department — to respond to a fire at a home on Coopers Bottom Road in Milton.

Firefighters were dispatched at 10:01 p.m. Saturday but their route was clogged by traffic and congestion from spectators attending Saturday night’s fireworks show on the Ohio River. Between heavy traffic and people blocking the roadway, and not moving out of the way of fire apparatus, the fire trucks were hindered in their arrival and the home was fully involved when fire trucks arrived and was a total loss.

The owners, Eric and Teena Drake, were not home at the time but some family pets did not make it out of the home. The cause of the fire has not yet been determined but appears to possibly have been electrical in nature. Trimble County Emergency Medical Service was also on the scene.

On Sunday at approximately 4:45 p.m. — about the time crowds were leaving after conclusion of the Madison Regatta — Madison fire companies were dispatched to a fire at a duplex in the 300 block of Cragmont Street owned by Hanging Rock Properties LLC.

The first arriving units reported that fire in the south wall had progressed into the attic. Firefighters were able to contain the fire in the south wall and the south attic with only minor water damage to the adjoining structure of the duplex.

All occupants were out of the structure by the time of firefighters arrived and there were no injuries. The cause of the fire is being investigated by the Madison Fire Department.

Editor’s note: Wallace said the MPD rescue video will be posted on their Facebook page.

Mr. Darrell Eugene Wheeler

Mr. Darrell Eugene Wheeler, age 86, of Bedford, Kentucky entered this life on April 22, 1936 in Bedford, Kentucky, born to parents Roy Glen and Mary Kathryn Moore Wheeler. A 1954 graduate of Trimble County High School, Darrell attended the University of Kentucky before returning home to enter private business. On August 29, 1959, he was united in marriage to Donna Lee Bailey. Two children, son Dale Eugene and daughter Diana Evelyn, blessed this union of nearly 63 years. During his working career, Darrell simultaneously meshed two successful businesses, farming and being a bulk oil distributor from 1958 to 1998 when he retired. A life-long, progressive farmer and a member of the Kentucky Cattlemen’s Association, Darrell merited the honor of being the first FFA State Farmer in Trimble County. From childhood throughout his adult life, Darrell never met a stranger. As classmates well remember, he loved to play practical jokes and make others laugh. This wittness and unique sense of humor served him well even up until his death. His true passion revolved around farming and God truly created a farmer in Darrell. Even though he made his living primarily through different proprietorships, his true passion was the land. He often reflected, “God isn’t making any more of it, so enjoy it as much as you can.” And to numerous others, Darrell truly “had a green thumb.” That color too followed him in the fields. An avid “John Deere” man, he often joked that the only color for a tractor was green. Most of his life farming was a side job as he operated Wheeler’s Oil Service with its neighborly appeal and location next door to Wheeler’s Dairy Freeze, operated by his mother. On weekend evenings or after church on Sunday, there was no better place to be to grab some good ice cream, hang out with Darrell and get the latest news. He loved to tell a good joke, give you his opinion on anything and occasionally throw in some politics. He continued his zest for local news by being a frequent patron at the local coffee shop, Little Town and Country. To make sure he had all the latest news and full story, he visited there in the mornings, after lunch and in the late afternoons. It was there that he shared stories with close friends and like all good stewards of the land provided mentoring to young farmers. Some of his mentees included the “Wright boys” as he called them. He developed a special relationship particularly with Philip Wright and his family and the Wheeler family is so appreciative of all that Philip has done during Darrell’s illness, even telling funny stories and laughing with Darrell until his final days. Darrell too loved gospel music, often singing along and playing it on truck and tractor CDs as he maneuvered the oil truck down Kentucky roads or farm machinery across fields. Family meant everything to Darrell. He shared a special bond with his twin sister Doris, plus served as mentor in all aspects of life to his younger brothers. His children and grandchildren were the lights of his life and he was happiest on Christmas morning when everybody gathered at the Wheeler home. He loved to Christmas shop for the ideal gift and surprise everyone on Christmas morning with his perfect find. Even though holiday occasions will not be the same without his physical presence, the precious memories of his signature laughter and funny narratives will always dominate family stories and loving remembrances. He demonstrated personally and instilled in every family member a strong work ethic that will continue to be an influential, life-time force. Devout in his faith, Darrell was a member of Hickory Grove United Methodist Church and attended Bedford United Methodist Church. Darrell would remark that he had a good life and saw everything he wanted to see. Darrell died on Friday, July 1, 2022 at 2:04 a.m. at River Terrace Health Campus in Madison, Indiana with his family at his side.

A LOVING FAMILY

Darrell will be missed by his wife of nearly 63 years, Donna Lee Bailey Wheeler of Bedford, Kentucky; his son Dale Eugene Wheeler and his wife Debbie of Bedford, Kentucky; his daughter Honorable Judge Diana Evelyn Wheeler and her husband, Andy Rohrbach of Prospect, Kentucky; his granddaughter Ashley Kathryn Wheeler Staley of Jacksonville, Florida; his grandsons Evan Scott Wheeler (Michelle) of Jacksonville, Florida, Patrick Wheeler Geoghegan of Chicago, Illinois and Ryan Thomas Geoghegan of Highland Heights, Kentucky; his great-grandsons Ace Radler Wheeler and Blaze Maverick Wheeler, both of Jacksonville, Florida; his twin sister Doris Wheeler Powell; his brother Douglas Richard Wheeler; his brother-in-law James Allen Bailey and his wife, Ginny of Bedford, Kentucky; his nieces Jill Powell, Jan Powell and Bridget Hamilton (Paul); his nephews Scott Bailey, Michael Bailey (Banita) and Jade Wheeler. He was preceded in death by his father Roy Glen Wheeler, died August 17, 1983; his mother Mary Kathryn Wheeler, died September 18, 1988; his brother Glen Marvin Wheeler, died May 18, 2015; and his father-in-law and mother-in-law Harlan Thomas Bailey, died July 30, 1977, and Vera Baker Joyce Bailey, died January 21, 1993.

“I have been doing a bunch of research on the property owners among the free black community in Madison from the 1820s to the 1850s,” Vetrhus told the historic board. “And I have come across some new information that one of the homes that has been approved for demolition might actually belong to one of our most famous underground railroad conductors. I don’t know that for a fact, but I do know for a fact that he owned the lot.”

Vetrhus said she wasn’t asking that the demolition be stopped, but that there be an opportunity to thoroughly investigate the property to document whether there is actual historical significance.

“I understand it is not in a good condition. I appreciate that, but we have got to document it,” she told the board. “This is actually one of the conductors that made Georgetown part of the national park service, part would have been the original national landmark historic district, so it’s really critical new information.”

The former owner in question is William J. Anderson, who was born to a free mother and slave father in Hanover County, Virginia, in 1811. A digital publishing initiative, Documenting the American South, stated that after Anderson’s father, a Revolutionary war veteran, died, his mother was forced to hire him out to a Virginia slaveholder. While serving in that capacity, Anderson learned to read and write.

Despite Anderson’s free status, he was later sold as a slave and forced to endure slave auctions in Tennessee and Natchez, Mississippi. While living on a plantation near Vicksburg, Mississippi, Anderson escaped by forging a pass and made his way to Madison in 1836. The next year he married, but his wife died in 1849. Anderson became a successful free man, owning three farms and operating businesses both in Madison and later in Indianapolis. He also was active in aiding fugitive slaves.

The house at 707 Walnut Street has modern vinyl siding, so Vetrhus said it’s hard to tell whether there is any sort of historic element left in the structure. “It looks from the 1854 plat map to match the size, and it is a frame structure, so it’s really really important that we get that documented,” she said.

Nicole Schell, the city’s director of planning, commented at the meeting that “as the regulatory arm of historic preservation I’m not sure what duty it is of the city. It sounds like that would be a better fit for an advocacy group or one of the other historic preservation non-profits to document,” rather than city staff.

However, Vetrhus contends that there must be city responsibility. “Before that demolition permit is given as part of the historic district and an incredibly important house nationally we need to have it documented. I don’t see how anybody can do that without the power of the government to do it. It can’t be left to just individuals,” she said.

Board member Mike Pittman wondered how the documentation can be achieved since the structure has been ruled dangerous. “If it is an unsafe structure, every day that building stands it is a liability for not only who goes in it, but also the city.” Pittman said he was also concerned for the safety of anyone who might go into the structure for the sake of documentation.

Vetrhus said documentation of buildings should be included in the historical board ordinance as a procedure that’s done before demolition happens on any structure in the downtown landmark district. “I was hoping that in your new guidelines that you would have some documentation requirements for any demolition in the historic district,” she noted.

Vetrhus said the Jefferson County Historical Society is in the process of developing a new display for the Jefferson County History Center about Madison’s black community, along with developing new walking tours of the Georgetown and Broadway black communities.

Shane rolls to 5th-straight Cup as Peabody flips

BY DAVID CAMPBELL

Corey Peabody took his boat on an unwanted flight and Miss Madison Racing thrilled the hometown fans with a 1-2 finish after one of the most exciting final heats in recent Madison Regatta history Sunday on the Ohio River.

Jimmy Shane and Peabody duelled for four laps in the final heat before Peabody's U-9 Lynx Healthcare hit a rolling wave at the end of the front stretch, lifting the boat into a spectacular 540-degree blowover that ended with a violent splash in the water.

With four laps completed, Shane and the U-1 Miss HomeStreet/Miss Madison were declared the winner, their fifth-straight Indiana Governor's Cup on their home waters while teammate Jeff Bernard was second in the U-91 Goodman Real Estate/Miss Madison.

It was exactly the type of finish that Shane was hoping for, minus the spectacular wreck of course.

"This is five years in a row for me with a win here and I think a lot of it has to do with with the fan base pushing me and having all their support. I know, in the back of my mind, I want to see everybody on that shoreline cheering when Miss HomeStreet comes by, hopefully in first place," said Shane. "I think that drives me just to push them especially hard here. Luckily we had clean data, everything was good and we finished cross the start/finish line in first place and it stuck this time."

While the fans were thrilled to see their two boats atop the podium, it was Peabody's flip that was all anybody could talk about.

Peabody, who won the APBA Gold Cup in Guntersville, Alabama the weekend before, was a thorn in Shane's side all weekend. While Shane won both preliminary heats on Sunday, it was Peabody that steered the U-9 to victory in the H1 Madison Showdown feature on Saturday when Shane was disqualified after being hit with an 80 mph violation before the start of the race.

Shane knew the Peabody was his biggest threat in the final heat and was determined to be inside. As it turned out, that may have been the difference between a win and being upside-down.

"I would not have been able to catch him from the outside. They had something special for that final heat and you could tell," Shane said.

Shane and Peabody quickly pulled away from the field and spent the four laps dueling alone. Shane's position on the inside allowed him to keep Peabody just out of reach, but on every lap, Peabody began to push it more and more in an attempt to get around.

That speed reached a crescendo just after the two boats crossed the line at the start of the final heat. Just before they entered the first turn, both boats hit the roller and began to lift. Shane was able to bring his powder blue HomeStreet down; Peabody could not.

Peabody's U-9 lifted in the air and for a moment, began to come down. But too much air had already gathered under the boat and in a split second, it was airborne.

The boat did a complete 360 degrees in the air and continued to spin, coming down on its top. The collision with the water caused the boat to flip one final time, and it came to a rest right-side up.

"I'm trying everything I could to catch him and we both hit the same roller," said Peabody, who was out of the boat expecting the damage before rescue crews arrived on the scene. "It was

Two H1 boats suffer major damage

BY DAVID CAMPBELL

The Ohio River at Madison has gotten a bad reputation throughout the sport over the past few years, but the mighty river was on its best behavior for the 71st running of the Indiana Governor's Cup this past weekend.

Gone were the debris issues that seemed to have plagued the race in recent years, and the constantly changing river levels were stable, right at pool stage. Even the current was down and all of the course markers stayed where they were placed (well, for the most part anyway).

But that doesn't mean that the H1 Unlimited field isn't limping away from Madison, licking its wounds and facing several long weeks in the shop.

Two of the six boats that parked in Madison for this weekend's race, the U-40 Beacon Plumbing and the U-9 Lynx Healthcare, received catastrophic damage and both are questionable about whether they will be ready for the next race in nearly a month.

By far the most spectacular highlight came via the Lynx Healthcare's 540-degree flip toward the end of the final heat. Driver Corey Peabody was pushing the boat hard in an attempt to catch Jimmy Shane and the U-1 Miss HomeStreet/Miss Madison, and hit a roller just as he was about to enter the first turn of the final lap.

The boat lifted and although Peabody nearly saved it, the boat caught enough air and took flight.

"I'm trying everything I could to catch him and we both hit the same roller," said Peabody, who was out of the boat expecting the damage before rescue crews arrived on the scene. "It was the same road bump over and it popped up on both and I was trying as much as I could to bring it down and it just popped the wheelie and there we went. But I'm OK."

The boat initially landed on the left transom, then rolled over on its top before coming to rest right-side up. The right sponson was torn completely from the craft and the rear of the boat suffered severe damage, but the capsule remained intact allowing Peabody to walk away from the crash.

The crew did its best to load up the parts and left Madison Monday morning for the long trek back to its shop in Washington state. It's unclear if the damage can be repaired in time for the next race in the Tri-Cities, Washington on July 26-28.

Not as spectacular but almost as damaging was the incident suffered by the U-40 Beacon Plumbing during testing Friday morning. Driver Dave Villwock said that he hit a log, shearing off one of the blades on the propeller.

The vibration and torque from the off-balance propeller bent the propeller shaft into an "S" shape and ripping into the bottom of the boat. The resulting crack along the bottom and rear of the boat is considered by many to be a "death blow" to boats, destroying its structural integrity. But with today's technological advances, the damage can be fixed, but it will take some time.

Because of the damage, the U-40 team pulled out of the pits early Saturday morning to make the trip to its shop in Washington.

Despite the two incidents, no other team — in any of the three classes — reported damage from debris or other water conditions, although four teams did suffer engine failures.

Almora's walk-off single lifts Reds over Braves

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CINCINNATI — Albert Almora Jr. slapped a bases-loaded single past a drawn-in infield in the ninth to give the Cincinnati Reds a 4-3 win over the Atlanta Braves on Sunday.

"I didn't try to do too much," Almora said. "It was the most excited I've seen the bench when we went ahead in the eighth. We needed that."

A day earlier, Almora would have been the go-ahead run, but flied out to the warning track with the bases loaded. "I hit the ball better yesterday but this one worked out," he said.

Not only did the Reds avoid a series sweep, but they also snapped a 10-game losing streak at Great American Ball Park — the longest home losing streak for the team since losing 11 straight at Riverfront Stadium in April-May 1986.

Braves reliever A.J. Minter allowed a single to Tommy Pham before walking Joey Votto and hitting pinch-hitter Jonathan India to load the bases with no outs in the ninth.

Almora delivered his base hit past a diving third baseman Austin Riley.

It was the first walk-off hit of the season for the Reds, who had been held to just one hit through seven innings by Braves starter Charlie Morton. The 38-year-old struck out 10 and issued a walk in his third seven-inning appearance of the season.

The Reds went up 3-1 in the eighth in part with a two-run double to right field from Brandon Drury.

Reds starter Luis Castillo allowed six hits through seven innings, struck out six and walked one.

BRAVES 9, REDS 1 (FRIDAY)

Max Fried is making his case for an All Star Game roster spot along with a bunch of his teammates.

Fried won his eighth straight decision following a loss in his first two outings, allowing one run over seven innings in Atlanta Braves' 9-1 rout of the woeful Cincinnati Reds on Friday night.

The 28-year-old left-hander was 3-0 with a 2.16 ERA in June for the World Series champions.

Although Fried acknowledged he didn't have his best stuff, the Reds were no problem. He gave up five hits with four strikeouts and no walks.

After allowing Tommy Pham's RBI single in the third, Fried retired 10 in a row and 11 of his last 13.

Kiwi Lipton rolls to Grand Prix America win

BY JORDAN BEAR

Apparently New Zealand is the place to find Grand Prix America drivers.

For the second straight week, it was a driver from New Zealand that brought home the big trophy as Ken Lupton won the Grand Prix America race in Madison on Sunday.

Driving the GP-577 Pakalana's Poke Wagon, Lupton held off a great challenge by Austin Eacret in the GP-12 Advantage Pest Control in the final heat to bring home the victory on the Ohio River.

Ken's brother Jack was the winner last week in Guntersville, Alabama and now both Kiwis can celebrate a win on the circuit.

"It feels amazing. The fans here are crazy," Lupton said with a laugh. "I can't wait to come back here again. It's been a really special weekend."

Lupton was dominant all weekend long. No matter what lane he was assigned, he always managed to put the boat in the front of the pack.

In the final heat, it was going to come down to him and Eacret as both hit the start right on the nose and put their boats in prime position throughout the entire four-lap heat. The inside lane was the difference between the two boats, as Lupton always kept his lead at a roostertail's length and was able to finally pull away from Eacret in the final lap to comfortably grab the victory.

"We've been working all weekend long on putting the best boat on the water, making sure we have all the pieces in place," Lupton said. "Our boat ran great, and I hope we made the people in New Zealand proud. This was for them. It was an incredible weekend and we're happy to be going home with the win."

Jeff Bernard, pulling double-duty on the weekend by driving in two different series, finished third in the GP-79 That Damm Bad Influence. Greg Hopp was fourth in the GP-15 Miss SuperShine and Jack Lupton was fifth in the GP-33 Pakalana's Poke Wagon.

Jack Lupton won all three of his preliminary heats but ran into trouble in the final and was never a contender. Ken Lupton had two wins and Eacret picked up his first-ever GPA win in Heat 2B.

Defending Madison champion Brandon Kennedy had trouble all weekend but appeared to solve his engine problems with an

Sandlin wins record 6th Firecracker 10K, more than any other

BY BOB DEMAREE

Nobody has won more Madison Firecracker 10Ks than Kristopher Sandlin — he was first three straight and five out of seven from 2013 to 2019 before placing second last year— and he was back on top Saturday for a sixth time with Lanie Nicholson posting her first win as the female.

Age hasn't slowed Sandlin, 30, Madison, who won his first Firecracker in 2013 when he was 21 years old. His winning time of 31:35 on Saturday was faster than his 31:44 in 2013. "Today was one of my fastest times on this course, which was 20 to 25 seconds off my best time that was eight or nine years ago. To be able to run somewhat close to that feels pretty good," said Sandlin.

Sandlin's best time was a 31:12 win in 2015 with his next best a 31:18 win in 2014. His slowest winning time was in 2019 when he ran 33:47 and his other win was in 2017 with a 33:31.

Sandlin, who ran at Scottsburg in High School and at Franklin in college, is now Madison Consolidated High School's cross country coach. "There are times that I don't feel as young as I used to be," he admitted. "I just tweak things in training and do what I'm able to do to still run close to what I've done in the past."

Last year, Sandlin posted a time of 31:47 when he was edged by Carter Leak of North Vernon with a 31:33.

Sandlin said he had expected to face Leak again this year, but when the defending champ did not show "I just went out and did my own thing and ran my own race." His "own thing" was more than four minutes faster than Saturday's runner-up, Zachary Friedmann, 18, Burnsville, Minnesota, who was ran the event while in Madison visiting his grandmother, Marie Pittman.

Friedmann had competed in the 10K last year and his second place time of 35:37 Saturday was actually five seconds slower than his 35:32 time in 2021 when he was fourth. The third place finisher was Kraedyn Young, 15, North Vernon, who posted a time of 36:54.

This year's start was by cannon instead of the starting gun that had been used in previous Firecracker 10Ks, and the loud cannon noise caught many of the runners by surprise. "There was just a little miscommunication," Sandlin said. "It wasn't like runners-to-your-start when the cannon went off. As soon as they got done talking, they shot the cannon. So, we were all confused there at first but with the chip times, I don't think it affected it much since they don't start until you cross the mat."

Nicholson, 17, Versailles, said she wasn't necessarily trying to win but wanted to run strong. "I just wanted to break my time from last year," she said, which she accomplished by almost four minutes with a 39:40 after running 43:35 last year while competing in her first Firecracker.

Nicholson was 10th overall in this year's 10K after running 22nd overall overall — and the sixth female — last year. "I was very surprised I got first because last year the girls were pretty far ahead of me," she said.

A 2022 graduate of South Ripley High School, Nicholson said she's made forward strides with her training and running over the last year, qualifying for state in cross country. "It's been definitely an improved year for my running," Nicholson said. "After this last cross country season, I've felt much more in shape."

For the first mile, Nicholson said she ran close to second-place finisher Emma Hartley, 17, Lawrenceburg, but then began to pull slightly ahead and held that lead the rest of the way. Hartley's time of 41:47 was about two minutes slower than Nicholson. Former MCHS runner Clare Wilber, now 20 and a collegiate runner at Lyon (Arkansas) College, was third at 44:36 with Shawe standout Calli Alderman, Madison, fourth with a 44:39.

Nicholson said her strategy was "to stay close to whatever guy was close to me." She said she really hasn't been training much the last few weeks since the school year ended. "I've just been jogging a little at home and haven't been doing too much training. I raced a couple of weeks ago in Lawrenceburg that had a big uphill for a mile-and-a-half so that was very good training for this."

Nicholson will attend Butler University in the fall majoring in pre-dental but not run collegiately. However, she will run some club events. "I like competition but it more about just the people and all the support."

Steven Floyd, 67, Bloomington, was the first walker to cross the finish line in 1:12.44 with the next four all from Madison — Jamie Harris, 59, in 1:13:45; Jamie Lutes, 52, in 1:14:39; Magnolia Heitz, 7, in 1:20:53; and Lance Green, 34, in 1:21:13.

A total of 266 runners finished the 10K race — 132 male and 134 female — and 84 participated in the non-competitive 10K walk — 28 male and 56 female.

Austin Riley put Atlanta ahead to stay with his team-high 19th homer, a two-run shot in the first inning.

Dansby Swanson added a three-run homer for the Braves, who are 22-6 since the start of June and 3 1/2 games behind the NL East-leading New York Mets.

Reds starter Mike Minor allowed two runs and six hits in six innings, his first quality start this season. Atlanta piled on seven runs off Cincinnati's bullpen, which entered with a 5.69 ERA — nearly a run higher than any other team. Swanson homered off Joel Kuhnel.

Spencer Strider allowed one hit over six innings and matched a career high with 11 strikeouts, Austin Riley homered for the second straight game and drove in two runs and the Atlanta Braves beat the Cincinnati Reds 4-1 Saturday.

Strider (4-2) didn't allow a hit until there were two outs in the fifth inning when Nick Senzel's single drove in Matt Reynolds, who entered the game when Kyle Farmer was hit by a pitch.

Dansby Swanson made a diving backhand catch of Joey Votto's pop into short left field to end the fourth and keep alive Strider's no-hit bid before Senzel's soft liner to center that fell in front of Michael Harris II.

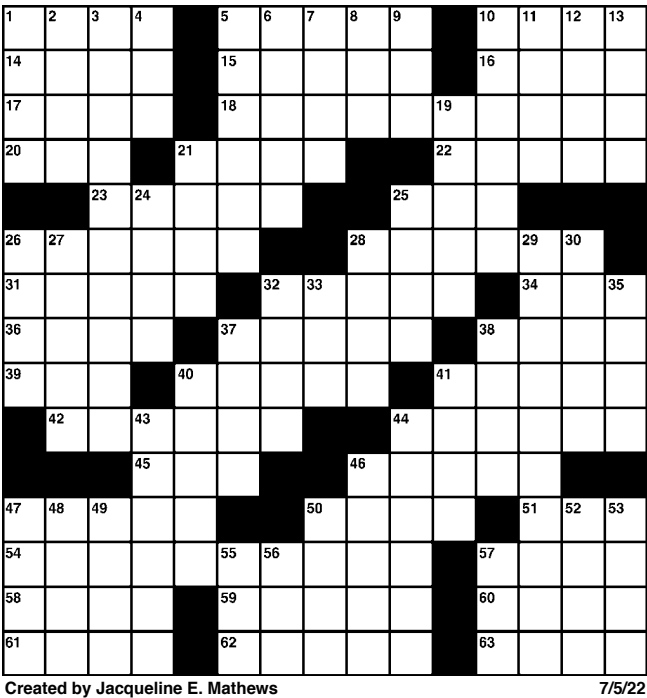

A.J. Minter pitched the seventh and Jesse Chavez the eighth before Will Smith pitched the ninth for his fourth save.

Tyler Mahle set a season high with four walks, including Harris II with the bases loaded in the fourth to force in Atlanta's second run.

Mahle (3-7) allowed five hits and two runs with five strikeouts. He also hit a batter.

Gift-giving creates problem, tough to unwrap

Dear Amy: I was raised in a religion that did not celebrate birthdays and most holidays.

In my early 20s I left that religion and do not practice any religion now.

As a kid I wished to celebrate Halloween and Christmas, but my family made up for it in other ways. We went on vacations and had plenty of toys and gifts.

My issue now is with the excessiveness I find in holidays and birthdays. When I celebrate these with family, I watch the kids tear through gift after gift, not even looking at each one.

I have 14 nieces and nephews, it gets expensive.

Besides Christmas, there is a never-ending cycle of holidays to buy for. It's exhausting.

It seems like such a waste of money to give people things they don't even end up liking.

If I had kids of my own, would I feel the same way? I know that part of the issue is that I don't have childhood memories that make these occasions special.

I can't stop buying gifts because I'll seem like a Scrooge, but seriously, our culture is beyond materialistic! Plus, I feel like I never have money for myself after buying for everyone else.

My husband grew up in a family that took part in all of this, so not participating is not an option.

I enjoy celebrating weddings, graduations, baby showers, anniversaries — milestone events.

How can I put all of this in a perspective that does not make me so resentful? — Spent Aunt

Dear Spent: The events you seem to value as important milestones are all events adults enjoy celebrating.

The events that you don't consider worthy on the same level are those that children generally enjoy - also those that your family didn't celebrate.

I suggest that birthdays are actually milestone events that are very important to children, not necessarily because of the gifts, but because of the recognition.

Family member needs non-binary primer

Dear Amy: My daughter (22 years old) came out as a non-binary last year, and I fully supported them (we use them/their pronouns now). They've been a lot happier since coming out.

They prefer to use their middle name (let's say "Max") instead of their first name ("Suzy").

The problem now is that my religious sister (who lives in another country) is coming into town for a visit.

I told my sister about "Max" a while back and she obviously is not very happy about it (not my problem). In our online chats, she keeps referring to Max using their previous name, "Suzy."

Whenever she does that, I will reply in ways such as: "Oh yes, Max is very glad that..."

I don't want her visit to be a disaster, nor do I want to listen to her quote from the Bible, etc.

Since my sister doesn't live in this country, Max hasn't seen her for a long time. I haven't told Max about their aunt's refusal to call them "Max." How should I handle this? — Anxious Mom

Dear Anxious: Non-binary does not refer to sexuality, but to gender. I'm not aware that the Bible addresses this aspect of being human (but I assume that readers will correct me).

If you accept that gender occurs along a continuum marked by two genders on either end of the spectrum: Female/Male, then it makes sense that a percentage of humans would identify as neither completely male nor completely female — but as "non-binary." Again — this gender identification is separate from a person's sexuality.

Let's stipulate that even after you explain this, your sister might find it confusing.

But even the most confused or gender-denying person can understand it when someone changes their name.

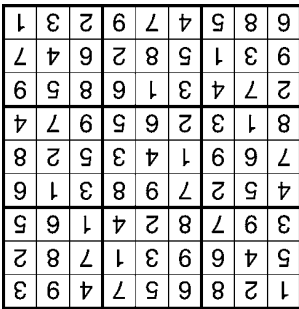

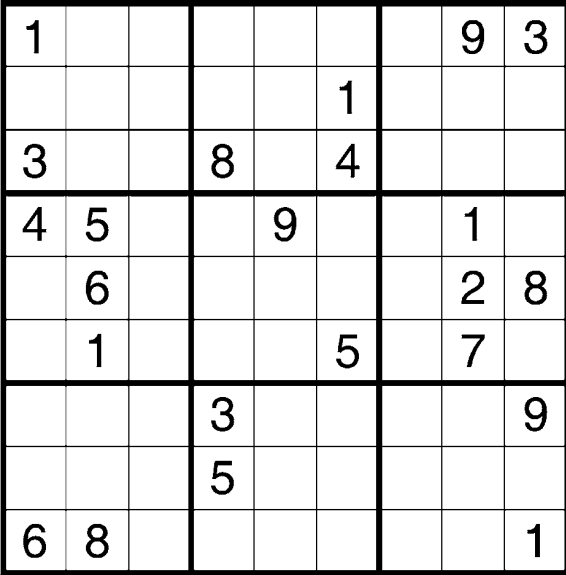

You should tell her: "Please refer to 'Max' as 'Max.' That's their name." If she forgets, remind her.

And yes, give Max a heads-up. Max can decide how little they wish to care about your sister's views, and I suggest that you carry on, whistling past your sister's nonsense until her visit ends.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — Spontaneity can be a lifesaver or weigh you down. If you suspect you are acting without adequate forethought, it is time to think again. Someone could subtly manipulate you to perform a task or change your mind.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — There is no reason to be too embarrassed to ask for your fair share. Profits should be shared, and the bills should be split down the middle if an arrangement is equitable. Do not let someone play on your emotions.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — Think about the optics and keep things on the up and up. Demonstrating your love to someone and handling relationships may demand great sensitivity at this time. You may feel pressured to LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — Focus on your own output rather than someone else's input. Don't get bogged down in details or the feedback from others. The best way to make an impression is to work diligently to see projects through to completion.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) — The timing may be off to get a major favor fulfilled. It's fine to ask for what you want or need, but you need to keep your expectations reasonable. This is not a good time to make crucial commitments or to sign agreements.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) — You may want to spend more time being creative and original, but you could be waylaid by a desire for more precision. Use a finely tuned eye for detail to add some finishing touches to an existing project.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) — Something may be going on behind the scenes; make sure you're aware of any activities that could affect the outcome of one of your pet projects. Stick to your plans and try to achieve your most essential goals.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — Hold out for the top of the line. It might be better to wait until you can afford the best than to settle for something that is less than you envision. Your good taste may be off now, and your people skills may be evolving.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) — Bring what warmth you can; it is possible that someone might mistake your reserve for a lack of sensitivity toward their feelings. Do your best to be gentle and transparent and avoid judgment.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) — You could be too kindhearted for your own good. Some casual acquaintance might consider you an easy mark if you are too easily moved by their sad stories. Do not make impetuous purchases and donations.

the same road bump over and it popped up on both and I was trying as much as I could to bring it down and it just popped the wheelie and there we went. But I'm OK."

"That was one hell of a race. I haven't been in a race where I had to drive that hard with a boat outside of me in a while," said Shane. "Corey pushed me all the way around the race because I could not shake him. That's the one thing in my head. I'm like, man, I cannot shake him and I was running the boat harder and harder. And the conditions got rougher and rougher as the race went on, and both of us hit the same roller down in that corner and fortunately, I was able to bring it back down. Corey hit the same roller and his just never came back down."

Jeff Bernard, who was running physically in third at the time of the crash, was awarded second place in the U-91 Goodman Real Estate, giving the Miss Madison team the top two finishers in the race. It was the first time in the team's 61-year history that it has campaigned two boats on its home course and the team was thrilled with the finish.

"This is a monumental challenge for us to run two boats. And the guy that does it and tells me every day why we can't do it is (crew chief) Mike Hanson," Miss Madison President

Charlie Grooms said.

"The reason why I can do it is currently standing behind me," said Hanson, pointing to the team. "It's a lot of work and the cash flow isn't always there and then we've got to improvise and try to plan ahead. The COVID deal was hard to get around and now there is $6 a gallon for gas. So with all of these challenges, these guys have found a way to surmount and overcome some of our own mistakes. But you know what, we'll keep after it and we're still try to make progress. We'll give it our best shot."

Jamie Nilsen finished third in the U-11 Miss Colleen, is second-straight week on the podium while Peabody's teammate J. Michael Kelly was fourth in the U-8 Miss Tri-Cities.

The victory was the 21st of Shane's career, putting him just one behind Jim Kropfeld for fifth all-time. It was also Shane's 15th with Miss Madison Racing tying him with Steve David for most with the team. It is the 35th win for Miss Madison Racing, second most all-time to only the famed Miss Budweiser.

Shane heads into the next race on the H1 Unlimited Series with a 551-point lead over Peabody in the National High Points. Bernard sits in third place, just 20 points behind Peabody.

The H1 fleet now turns westward for the final three races on the 2022 schedule, starting with the Columbia Cup in the Tri-Cities, Washington July 26-28.
